

Children's Book Festival 2011

As part of the annual Children's Book Festival, Carlow Libraries will be hosting three author visits during the month of October: acclaimed local author David Donohue, author of the popular witch-in-training series Maeve Friel and Laoise Ní Chomhraí, a renowned author who writes as gaeilge. Local primary school students will be given the opportunity to attend one of these events when the library contacts schools in September.

In association with the Children's Book Festival, Carlow Libraries will also be offering children a chance to win prizes for themselves and their school, by taking part in two competitions. The first competition is for budding artists, where children get to draw a design for a book cover, while the second competition asks children to choose a name for the festival's book munching monster. For competition forms contact your local library, best of luck to all participants and remember to keep a look out for more details on the Children's Book Festival 2011.
